March 2023 Newsletter

Our trombone community is busy and thriving!
You'll feel the energy while reading through this issue. Look for information about events, The Listening Corner, and an invitation to share your good ideas.

Looking back at February

There was no shortage of fabulous February events. Several universities around the world hosted guest artists who interacted with their students.

There was lots more, of course. Should you have news of a February event to share, please tell us about it. Submit your event's description and photos for possible inclusion in next month's newsletter. Email information to brad@trombone.net.

Last chance! If you have not participated in our Diversity Survey yet, please do so now. It closes on March 10.

Buckeye Brass and Winds Trombone Day

The 2023 Buckeye Brass and Winds Trombone Day was an extraordinary success. Read all about it in Jeremy Smith's article!

Students: Would you like to attend ITF?

Now is the time! The International Trombone Festival is accepting applications for student workers and, new this year, student leaders.

Looking ahead to March

March is full of magic, and wonderful events lie ahead. Watch for Trombone Days at University of Southern Mississippi and The Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music.

The early music ensemble Piffaro, will host a Sackbut Workshop in Indiana, and The Chetham School of Music will host a Brass and Percussion Day in London, UK.

-- Recognize a woman who helped you along your musical journey --

March 8

International Women's Day is the perfect time to reflect on your musical journey. Thank a supportive family member, friend, or music teacher who helped you along.

April 16-23: International Trombone Week

It's our 20th Anniversary and of course we'll mark the occasion all month long! Here are just a few celebrations in the works.

April 2 (Calgary) Slide Into Spring

Slide into Spring celebrates its 10th Annual Event, this year! Bringing together trombonists from all over the region – of all ages and levels – for an afternoon symposium of workshops and trombone displays as well as an evening concert celebrating our fantastic instrument!

LISTENING CORNER

Gather 'round

Hear the incredible story of the ITA! December's Zoom session welcomed many of the most significant figures in our organization's history. What better way is there to celebrate 50 years of the ITA than by learning about how it all started?

Reginald Chapman releases new album

Bass trombonist and bass trumpeter Reginald Chapman released his album in November, 2022. East Williamsburg Sessions features new songs, and re-imaginings of some of his previously recorded songs.
